SOMERSET, NJ — Franklin Township Public Library will present an exhibition of original artwork by internationally award-winning artist Kyoko Bartley, beginning October 28, 2026, and continuing through late January 2027.

Based in New Jersey, Bartley is a Japanese-born visual artist whose work spans a variety of subjects and media, including watercolor, acrylic, graphite, colored pencil, and ink.

The exhibition will feature a selection of her original artwork, including Japanese-inspired paintings of Mount Fuji and koi fish, wildlife and bird paintings, and pet portraits. The collection offers visitors an opportunity to explore the artist's diverse styles, techniques, and creative interests.

Bartley has exhibited her artwork at galleries, libraries, art fairs, and community events throughout the Princeton area.

In addition to her original paintings, she creates commissioned artwork.

The exhibition is free and open to the public during the library's regular operating hours.
